

Today, remember that how people react to your performance or how they perceive you is out of your control.

Let your focus be on the process of serving people, because that is something you can control and when you are focused on serving you have no time (or use) for fear or doubt.

Win Your Day!
Steve Gilbert